A wearable garment, similar to a necktie, adapted to carry a canned or bottled beverage in an upright and vertical position. The garment is similar to a necktie in that it has a main body of similar shape and dimensions to a necktie and attaches around the neck of the user with a strap. The garment includes a vertical beverage holder that is combined with the main body of the garment, with a bottom and an opening that faces up, allowing the introduction of a canned or bottled beverage.
